The book begins by discussing how developmental issues can affect administrative and classroom decisions regarding mixed-age grouping, ability grouping, retention, food, exercise, the structure of the school day, and racial and cultural questions. Each of the nine chapters, one for each age, begins with a narrative overview describing general developmental characteristics relating to behavior, emotional needs, and social interactions. The chapters conclude with sets of charts that allow readers to identify developmental "yardsticks" for a given age. The charts outline characteristic growth patterns (physical, social, language, and cognitive), as well as what to expect in the classroom regarding vision and fine motor ability, gross motor ability, cognitive growth, and social behavior. A set of curriculum charts summarizing the experiences and to challenge and rethink their assumptions and attitudes toward children and teaching. This new, up-to-date edition describes research-based classroom practices to engage children in exploring the complexities of race, economic inequities, immigration, environmental issues and sustainability, gender and sexual orientation and identities, and abilities and disabilities. It also addresses the challenges of teaching in the context of globalization, pervasive social media, and increasing standards and accountability. Book Features: Addresses social and economic inequities and how they affect staff relationships, interactions with parents, and children's classroom experiences. Offers strategies to help teachers initiate conversations with colleagues, parents, and children. Discusses long-term structural decisions about early and adults, and co-author of Leading Anti-Bias Early Childhood Programs: A Guide for Change "This book is a timely, relevant resource for anyone who works with young children in any capacity. It supports practitioners to develop an individualized approach to infusing multicultural education—broadly defined—into their world views and work. Ramsey makes a clear and convincing case that multicultural education is not an "add-on"; it is a vehicle for shaping children's lives and creating a more just society."
